Description

For your consideration is this extremely stylish Art Deco sideboard made by Hille, a highly regarded furniture maker of the 1930s and a peer to H & L Epstein brothers. This high end sideboard would not have been cheap in its day and wasn't produced for the masses. This piece not only offers kerb appeal but is very functional too. Either side has a curved door which opens to reveal a very generous sized shelved interior. The central section offers more internal storage with generous shelving. A single drawer opens effortlessly and offers more storage again. The whole piece is raised on two fluted pedestals in blonde sycamore with a shallow oval plinth in walnut to the base. This really is a fantastic piece of furniture and is of the highest quality by style, design and craftsmanship. The whole piece has been professionally restored and so is in excellent condition. Like all great pieces of Art Deco furniture this moderne take was so advanced of it's time that a hundred years later it will integrate perfectly with a modern or vintage interior. Hille Art Deco furniture is today is highly sort after by auction houses and private collectors and has maintained it's popular...
