Description

This is a most impressive pair of hand carved gilt wood console tables dating from the early 20th century. The fabulous tables have a fine pair of griffin like creatures, one either end majestically supporting the substantial rouge marble tops. The exuberant style of the tables suggests an Irish origin, most likely from a grand hall. The Italian rouge marble surface has a most attractive colour and is wonderfully figured and in excellent order. The tables are a great size for a large hallway or a fine pair of alcove tables for a grand house measuring 120 cms wide, 94 cms high and 35 cms deep overall, the marble being 32 cms in depth. UK insured hand delivery can be arranged with our careful courier and costs £100 plus vat to most areas.
