Description

Oil on Canvas – Flemish Street Scene by L. De Gent An evocative early 20th century Flemish street scene by Belgian artist L. De Gent, depicting a historic alleyway with a Marian wall shrine – rich in atmosphere and architectural detail. Full Description A finely executed oil on canvas signed L. De Gent, portraying a quiet Flemish street corner beneath a timbered archway. The composition captures the intimacy of an old Catholic city – likely Ghent or Antwerp – with cobbled paving, aged façades, and a distinctive blue wall plaque featuring stars and a small statue of the Virgin Mary illuminated by a hanging lantern. Public religious shrines such as this were common fixtures on corner walls and alleyways in historic Flemish cities, reflecting the devotional character of the region. The artist's name, De Gent ("from Ghent"), suggests a local painter working in the late 19th to mid 20th century Belgian realist/impressionist tradition. The work is notable for its warm palette, confident brushwork, and sensitive rendering of light and texture. Details Artist: L.
