Description

A handsome Regency mahogany side cabinet, beautifully proportioned and crafted in the early 19th century. The well figured mahogany is enhanced by a crossbanded top, adding refinement and visual depth to the surface. The cabinet features two upper drawers with decorative moulded borders, each fitted with brass knob handles and central keyholes. Below, a pair of panelled cupboard doors open to useful storage, making this an elegant yet practical piece for a hallway, sitting room, or study. Raised on turned legs and retaining a warm, rich patina, this cabinet is a fine example of Regency craftsmanship—stylish, functional, and full of period charm. Key Features • Genuine Regency period mahogany side cabinet • Attractive crossbanded top • Two drawers with moulded borders and brass knob handles • Lower panelled cupboard doors with central divider • Warm, well preserved Regency patina • Stands on turned legs • Practical storage with refined period detailing • Ideal for hallways, living rooms, studies, or elegant interiors
