Description

A fine pair of oak Cromwellian-style armchairs of impressive quality and craftsmanship. Each chair stands on turned and carved legs united by traditional barley twist stretchers, providing both strength and visual appeal. The shaped front rail is richly carved with decorative detail, complementing the boldly carved arms, which are supported by elegant barley twist uprights. The high backs are profusely carved and finished with attractive cane panels, showcasing the distinctive character and craftsmanship associated with the Cromwellian style. The generously proportioned seat pads have been recently reupholstered, offering both comfort and practicality while complementing the period design. Presented in good condition throughout, this handsome pair would make an impressive addition to a period interior, country house, or antique furniture collection. Size: Height 48" (122cm) Width 22" (56cm) Depth 24" (61cm) Seat height 19" (48cm) Seat depth 18" (46cm)
