Description

A fine pair of late 18th century English fruitwood candlesticks, dating to circa 1790. Expertly hand turned and intricately carved, these elegant candlesticks display beautifully executed open twist stems, showcasing the exceptional craftsmanship of the period. Each candlestick stands on a broad circular base with a moulded edge and a finely dished, shaped centre. The delicately carved open twist stems are threaded into the bases, allowing the two sections to be securely joined. The shaped sconces are designed to accommodate the candles. Crafted from richly figured fruitwood, the candlesticks have developed a superb warm colour and attractive patina over more than two centuries. They remain in very good original condition, with no repairs. Origin: England Date: Circa 1790
