Description

Superb Quality French Mid 19th-Century Tall Oak Open Library Bookcase – A striking and highly practical mid 19th-century French tall open library bookcase in solid oak, of exceptional depth and superb quality throughout. Made in France circa 1850, this impressive piece combines refined proportions with generous storage, making it ideal for a serious library or an elegant living space. The bookcase is constructed in sections, including the moulded cornice, upper shelving unit and lower cupboard, allowing it to be dismantled for ease of transport and for access through tighter doorways, staircases or hallways. The upper section features an attractive moulded cornice above three open compartments, fitted with twelve fully adjustable shelves, providing flexible display for books, art and decorative objects. The lower section is enclosed by beautifully figured oak panelled doors with carved roundel decoration, opening to reveal a further six adjustable shelves, and raised on an integral moulded plinth base. The generous depth of the shelves makes this piece particularly practical for larger volumes. Working locks with the original keys. The solid oak has developed a rich, warm patina.
