Description

An exceptional vintage Kutchinsky ring, showcasing the bold and distinctive design language that made this celebrated London jeweller one of the most sought-after names in fine jewellery during the 1970s. Renowned for its luxurious craftsmanship and innovative creations, Kutchinsky produced many pieces in limited numbers, making surviving examples highly desirable among collectors today. Beautifully crafted in rich 18ct yellow gold, this elegant ring features a sparkling central cluster of four brilliant cut diamonds, framed by polished natural black onyx panels to either side. The striking contrast between the bright diamonds, deep black onyx and warm yellow gold creates a timeless and sophisticated look that remains as stylish today as when it was first made. Fully hallmarked for London 1975 and bearing the prestigious Kutchinsky maker's mark, this is a wonderful opportunity to acquire an authentic piece from one of Britain's most respected jewellery houses. Professionally cleaned and polished, the ring is presented in excellent vintage condition and is ready to wear, gift, or add to a discerning jewellery collection.
