Description

A truly exceptional and highly collectible vintage ring from the renowned British jeweller Kutchinsky, celebrated for creating bold, luxurious designs and producing many pieces as unique, one-off creations. This stunning ring perfectly showcases the distinctive craftsmanship and quality that made Kutchinsky one of London's most sought after jewellery houses during the 1970s. Beautifully crafted in rich 18ct yellow gold, the ring features an elegant open crossover design adorned with two delicate three-stone clusters. One cluster is set with three perfectly matched brilliant cut diamonds, while the opposing cluster showcases three deep blue sapphires, creating a striking contrast of sparkle and colour. The sculptural shoulders flow seamlessly into the setting, giving the ring a sophisticated and unmistakably vintage character. Fully hallmarked for London 1976 and bearing the maker's mark Kutchinsky. This is a rare opportunity to own an authentic piece from one of Britain's most prestigious jewellery manufacturers. Professionally cleaned and polished, the ring remains in excellent vintage condition and is ready to wear, gift, or add to a fine jewellery collection. Details ...
