Description

A beautiful antique Victorian oak bureau desk. This elegant piece combines practical storage with timeless craftsmanship, featuring a traditional fall front writing surface that opens to reveal a charming fitted interior with pigeonholes, small compartments and a central stationery drawer. Below are four spacious graduated drawers offering excellent storage, all retaining their attractive turned wooden knobs and classic brass escutcheons. The rich oak has developed a wonderful deep patina over the years, giving the bureau plenty of authentic character. Whether used as a writing desk, home office piece or statement furniture in a hallway or living room, this bureau is both practical and full of period charm. Good to very good antique condition. The bureau is solid, sturdy and fully functional with age-related wear consistent with its age. Please note: the original locks and keys are no longer present. This does not affect everyday use, and the writing flap and drawers operate as they should.
