Description

William IV Circular Rosewood Dining Table An exceptional William IV circular rosewood dining table, dating to circa 1835, showcasing the bold scale and refined craftsmanship characteristic of the period. The magnificent circular top is veneered in beautifully figured rosewood, displaying dramatic grain patterns and rich tonal variation that create a striking visual centrepiece. The table is raised on a substantial turned central column, standing on elegant carved scroll feet. The generous 136cm diameter comfortably accommodates six diners, making it ideal as a dining table or statement centre table. With its superb colour, outstanding figuring, and quality construction, this is a distinguished example of early 19thc. rosewood furniture.
