Description

A charming 19th-century Dutch theestoof, traditionally used to keep a teapot warm over a small charcoal burner. The body is crafted from alternating light and dark timber segments, banded with turned black accents and raised on three bun feet. The flared, scalloped rim holds a removable brass liner. Rich colour, lovely patination and a beautifully decorative presence. A fine example of Dutch domestic craftsmanship, now perfect as an unusual decorative piece or for use as a planter with its brass insert. Internal reference : SAI4186
