Description

A simple and characterful Japanese wooden vendor's stool, traditionally used by street and market traders. Made in a practical trapezoid form with a slanted front and circular hand hole, it shows the honest wear and warm patina of daily use. The visible grain and small imperfections add to its rustic charm. Functional and decorative, it works beautifully today as a small display stand, plant riser, or sculptural accent with authentic Japanese folk character. Internal reference : SAI4199
