Description

A handsome late 19thth century Viennath style wall clock in a richly polished walnut case, decorated with carved cresting, turned finials and fluted side columns. The gilt brass dial is beautifully detailed, with Roman numerals, engraved corner spandrels and a finely embossed centre. Two polished weights and a brass pendulum hang within the glazed door, completing the classic regulator aesthetic. The clock carries a presentation plaque dated January 1st 1895, gifted to James Chapman by his fellow workmen and friends — a lovely piece of social history that adds charm and provenance. A striking decorative clock with excellent colour, crisp carving and strong presence on the wall. Internal reference : SAI4226
