Description

Circa. 1820, Patinated Bronze, Eagle's Claw with the Bust of a Satyr (Italian). Rare oil lamp in patinated bronze in the shape of eagle's claws with naturalistic molding, bearing the bust of a satyr on a baluster column, after Severo Calzetta da Ravenna (1465 - 1543). The back of the head can be opened and filled with oil, the mouth with the tongue out contains a tube for the wick. Severo Calzetta da Ravenna, nicknamed the Master of Dragons, worked between Ravenna, Ferrara and Padua between the end of the 15th century and the middle of the 16th century. A certain number of bronze objects preserved in different museums around the world are attributed to him. The resumption of the creations of Severo Calzetta da Ravenna in the 18th and 19th centuries is part of the tradition of the Grand Tour: these were objects intended for enlightened amateurs. The concept of the School of Padua is often attached to it. An identical model is on display at the Victoria and Albert Museum in London.
