Description

An exceptionally elegant Edwardian satinwood painted bureau chest dating to circa 1900, combining refined craftsmanship, decorative artistry and practical functionality in one highly desirable piece of antique furniture. Constructed from beautifully figured satinwood of warm golden colour, this charming bureau is adorned throughout with exquisite hand-painted floral garlands, ribbon swags and classical ornament. The fall-front writing slope is centred by a delightful painted oval cartouche depicting a cherubic figure, creating a striking focal point that immediately reflects the sophistication and decorative taste of the Edwardian period. Opening to reveal a beautifully fitted interior, the bureau offers an arrangement of drawers, pigeonholes and compartments designed for correspondence, stationery and personal treasures. Below are four generously proportioned drawers providing excellent storage, each enriched with further painted decoration and retaining attractive period handles. The elegant serpentine bombe-shaped front and graceful bracket feet enhance the visual appeal, whilst the quality satinwood veneers display attractive figuring and rich colour throughout. Th...
