Description

A strikingly stylish pair of French leather armchairs, dating to the 1930s or 1940s, combining superb craftsmanship with bold architectural styling. Each chair is constructed around a solid hardwood frame, clad in beautifully aged cigar-brown leather and finished throughout with traditional brass studwork, the leather having acquired a rich depth of colour and patina over the decades. The generous seat cushions have been newly upholstered in an attractive oatmeal weave, sitting over the original leather suspension straps which remain secured by their original riveted fixings. These handsome and well made chairs are full of character. They would work equally well in a period interior or as statement seating within a contemporary home. Seat height 43cm.
