Description

Vintage 1962 Pearl and Diamond Cluster Ring in 18ct Gold This beautiful vintage pearl and diamond ring was made during the early 1960s and is fully hallmarked for Birmingham 1962. With its sculptural profile, two-colour gold setting and sparkling diamond halo, it is an exceptionally elegant example of mid-century British jewellery. The ring is centred with a lustrous cultured pearl measuring approximately 7.3mm. The pearl has a soft silvery-white colour, delicate pink overtones and a beautifully even lustre that catches the light most attractively. Surrounding the pearl are ten sparkling diamonds with a combined estimated weight of approximately 0.30 carat. The diamonds are held in an elaborate, finely chiselled 18ct white-gold setting. This textured setting reflects the light around the stones and gives the diamond halo a particularly bright and substantial appearance. The cluster rests above a decorative yellow-gold coronet, while the slender 18ct yellow-gold shank provides an elegant contrast to the white-gold diamond setting. Viewed from the side, the raised coronet gives the ring a graceful architectural profile characteristic of fine mid-century jewellery. Alth...
