Description

Description A very fine mid-century crystal wine or spirit decanter dating to circa 1960. It retains its original mushroom-cut stopper and features elegant flute cutting to the shoulders. The main body is richly decorated with fan, star and diamond cutting, creating a striking interplay of light and reflection. The base is finished with a radial cut design and a polished pontil, and bears the acid-etched Doulton Crystal mark. Generously proportioned, the decanter will comfortably hold a full bottle of wine, although it is equally suited to the service of whisky, brandy or other spirits, making it both a practical and impressive table piece. Produced during the golden age of British crystal manufacture, this handsome decanter exemplifies the quality and craftsmanship for which Doulton Crystal became renowned. Its crisp cutting, excellent clarity and substantial weight make it an attractive addition to any collection or drinks cabinet. Date & Origin England, c1960, Period of Queen Elizabeth II Condition Excellent.
