Description

DESCRIPTION An attractive George III oak lowboy dating from around 1770, retaining a rich mellow colour and pleasing proportions. With its compact footprint, original brass handles and distinctive Gothic-arched kneehole, it makes an elegant occasional table, side table or lamp table. The plank top with ogee-moulded front and side edges sits above one long and two short cockbeaded drawers with pine linings. The lowboy is fitted with brass swan-neck handles and stands on straight legs with chamfered inner angles. DIMENSIONS Height: 72 cm Width: 84 cm Depth: 44 cm CONDITION The lowboy is in good, solid condition with an attractive rich colour and a sound top. The drawers run smoothly, the joints are stable and the brass handles appear to be original. There are ink stains, light scratches and minor knocks commensurate with age and use. There are some small losses to the cockbeading, together with historic repairs to the cockbeading on the left-hand drawers. Overall, it is a handsome and characterful example, retaining a particularly attractive colour and presenting very well for its age. As with all antique and vintage furniture, this piece has been used and enjoyed over ma...
