Description

Pair of Painted Bedside Cabinets with Marble Tops, c.1900, probably French. An elegant pair of French bedside cabinets dating from around 1900, beautifully crafted in solid wood and finished in a softly distressed old white paint. Each cabinet is topped with its original white marble slab, featuring delicate grey veining that complements the refined decorative carving below. The design includes a single drawer above a cupboard with an internal shelf, providing practical storage while retaining a graceful, classical appearance. The hand-carved floral and scroll motifs, moulded detailing, and shaped plinth bases are characteristic of the French Louis XV revival style, offering timeless charm and sophistication. Versatile in use, these cabinets work equally well as bedside tables, lamp tables or accent pieces in both traditional and contemporary interiors.
