Description

As part of our Japanese works of art collection we are delighted to offer this large Meiji Period (1868-1912) Satsuma ware Natsume (tea caddy), this large caddy of hexagonal form is finely decorated with a comical scene of musicians and dancers performing a theatrical performance or procession, the scenes include a shamisen player, drummers, dancers and a crouched male presumably sipping some form of drink from a barrel, this jovial scene continues throughout the body of the vessel with white enamel highlights decorated in relief (moriage). The shoulders are decorated with more formal geometric patterns as is the outside of the lid, which displays a traditional lakeside scene, the underside of the caddy bears the signature seal for Kizan, a well recorded Satsuma artist of the Meiji Period.
