Description

A graceful antique 9ct gold bar brooch set with a central opal flanked by two pearls. The softly flowing gold design is typical of the late Victorian to Edwardian period, with elegant curved lines that give the piece a refined and timeless appearance. The opal displays subtle flashes of colour that contrast beautifully against the soft lustre of the pearls and warm gold tones. Light and neatly proportioned, this is a lovely example of delicate early twentieth century jewellery. Why we love it The flowing Edwardian styling and gentle combination of opal and pearls give this brooch a wonderfully soft and elegant antique character.
