Description

An exceptional antique Edwardian satinwood painted compactum wardrobe, dating from circa 1900, combining elegant craftsmanship, refined proportions and superb practicality in one outstanding piece of decorative furniture. Constructed from beautifully figured satinwood, this magnificent cabinet features an impressive triple-section design incorporating a central glazed bookcase above three generous drawers, flanked by two full-height bow-fronted wardrobe compartments. The central astragal glazed doors open to adjustable shelving, whilst each wardrobe offers excellent hanging storage, making the cabinet equally suited to modern living as it was over a century ago. The beautifully matched satinwood veneers display striking chevron figuring throughout, complemented by delicate crossbanding, finely executed marquetry and exquisite hand-painted decoration. Each wardrobe door is centred by an elegant oval reserve depicting classical romantic scenes surrounded by scrolling painted ornament, floral detailing and neoclassical motifs, creating a cabinet of exceptional decorative appeal. The restrained architectural cornice, elegant oval glazing and sweeping bow-fronted doors perf...
