Description

DESCRIPTION A late nineteenth to early twentieth-century Chinoiserie lacquered kidney-shaped dressing table. The shaped top is raised above an arrangement of four drawers and stands on elegant cabriole legs. The table is decorated throughout with gilt Chinoiserie scenes and borders on a red lacquer ground, depicting figures, wildlife, buildings and landscapes in the Oriental taste popular during the late Victorian and Edwardian periods. Unusually, the decoration extends to all sides of the table, allowing it to be displayed either against a wall or as a freestanding piece within a room, and it is constructed in oak at least in part. Well proportioned and of practical size, the table would serve equally well as a dressing table, writing desk or occasional desk, combining decorative appeal with everyday functionality. DIMENSIONS Height: 77cm Width: 122cm Depth: 72cm CONDITION The table is in good, solid condition and remains sturdy and fully usable. There are marks, knocks, scuffs and general wear to the lacquered finish consistent with its age and use, together with some minor losses all round and major losses to the back associated with sun exposure. The drawers run smo...
