Description

Art Deco Longcase Clock – For Restoration – Chrome Dial & Triple Weight Movement An elegant early 20th century Art Deco longcase clock, offered as a complete project for restoration. Description: The case is of tall, slim, and rounded architectural form with carved Art Deco detailing, veneered in dark-stained oak or similar hardwood. The clock retains its original chrome-plated Arabic numeral dial, which is heavily oxidised and discoloured, consistent with age and long storage. The movement is an 8-day triple-weight chiming movement with visible strike mechanisms. It appears complete but untested. Comes with: Original brass movement Three chrome cylindrical weights Pendulum rod and bob Chrome Arabic numeral dial Original winding key Internal paper instructions label still present to inner case. Condition: Being sold as found for restoration or parts. The case is structurally sound and retains its glass, though general surface wear and age marks are present. The dial is tarnished and shows patches of corrosion. The movement is untested and may require a full service. Chrome on weights and pendulum bob is generally bright with some signs of ageing.
