Description

An attractive late Victorian ebonised writing desk or side table, dating from the late 19th century. Recently restored with a new plain red leather writing surface, this elegant desk combines classic Victorian craftsmanship with a clean, understated aesthetic that works beautifully in both traditional and contemporary interiors. Raised on finely turned legs united by H-stretchers, the desk features two generous drawers fitted with brass drop handles and is finished on all sides, allowing it to be positioned freely within a room. The new plain leather writing surface offers a fresh, refined appearance without the formality of traditional gilt tooling, making it particularly suited to modern interior schemes. Knee Height 63 cm Condition: Good antique condition. The desk has been professionally restored and fitted with a new plain red leather writing surface. The ebonised finish displays light age-related wear, including minor rubbing and small marks commensurate with age, which add to its character. The dovetailed drawers are clean, solid and run smoothly.
