Description

Fine Regency Rosewood Circular Breakfast / Centre Table (c.1830) An exceptionally fine Regency rosewood circular centre table of classical proportions, dating to circa 1830. The standout feature of this piece is its remarkable colour. Unlike darker, heavy rosewood examples, nearly two centuries of natural sunlight and careful polishing have aged the timber into a breathtaking, warm golden-amber tone. The figure of the book-matched rosewood veneer across the top is sensational, displaying complex, swirling grain patterns that catch the light beautifully from every angle. Key Highlights & Features Highly Desirable Circular Top: While oval examples are far more common, circular breakfast tables of this period remain vastly superior in aesthetic appeal and symmetry, making them heavily sought after by collectors and interior designers alike. Classic Tilt-Top Action: Features its original tilt-top mechanism, allowing the top to pivot vertically to save space or showcase the spectacular timber when placed against a wall. Sublime Proportions & Detailing: Supported by a robust central pedestal resting on a triform plinth base, finishing with boldly carved paw feet on concea...
