Description

Antique 19th century Victorian set of six oak dining chairs, an exceptional and highly decorative suite, expertly crafted and of the finest quality. This impressive set consists of six matching single chairs, each displaying remarkable attention to detail and the superb craftsmanship associated with the Victorian period. One of the most fascinating features of these chairs is the beautifully carved backrests, each depicting a different stage in the life cycle of an acorn. This unique progression of carvings is exceptionally unusual and showcases the skill and imagination of the original craftsman, making the set a true conversation piece. The chairs stand on elegant turned legs, with solid frames that remain sturdy and free from unwanted movement. The seats and padded backs are upholstered in an attractive red floral fabric, complementing the warm tones of the oak. The timber itself displays beautiful grain and rich colour throughout, while the intricate carving elevates this set far beyond the ordinary. Rarely does a set with such distinctive symbolism and craftsmanship come to the market. Presented in good condition, this remarkable Victorian dining set is a rare and h...
