Description

An exceptional antique burr walnut cocktail cabinet dating from circa 1930, combining richly figured veneers, generous storage and a beautifully fitted drinks compartment within an impressive period design. The cabinet is constructed in the Queen Anne Revival taste, with a gently serpentine front, shaped upper gallery, carved shell and pendant ornament, a scrolling apron and elegant cabriole legs. Its principal attraction is the outstanding burr walnut, carefully selected and book-matched across the four doors to create dramatic symmetrical patterns with remarkable depth, movement and warm golden colour. The two central doors open to reveal a fitted cocktail interior with a mirrored back, glass shelves and a glass serving surface. Beneath are a useful drawer and additional storage compartments designed for bottles, accessories and serving equipment. The curved outer cupboards provide further storage with shaped internal shelves, allowing glassware and drinks to be arranged neatly while remaining easily accessible. Produced during the interwar period, when English furniture manufacturers combined traditional cabinetmaking with the glamour and sociability of the Art Deco...
