Description

A rare and beautiful, small 'chanteh' (vanity-bag), made by the Bolvardi tayefeh of the Qashqa'i Confederation circa 1880-1900. The bag has a stunning abrash of blue-green and dark-blue in the knotted-pile face and human representation, stylized animals and double-headed creatures upside-down where the tribal weaver started knotting. The back is equally beautiful with horizontal bands of aubergine, red, light-brown, light-blue, golden-yellow and ivory and the selvedges are over-bound in the same beautiful, natural colours. Acquired recently from an old private collection, the bag has been washed and the wool is soft and shiny. Size: 29cm (12") square excluding tassels.
