Description

A wonderfully practical and characterful vintage French pine sideboard of generous proportions, offering a wealth of storage behind two smoothly sliding doors. With its warm honey-coloured timber, simple country styling and handsome black iron handles, it has an understated charm that sits equally well in a traditional farmhouse kitchen or a more contemporary interior. Designed with functionality in mind, the broad top provides an excellent work surface, making it ideal as a kitchen preparation table, serving station or substantial sideboard. Beneath, the sliding doors reveal spacious shelved cupboards, offering plenty of room for crockery, cookware, linens or everyday household essentials. The sliding mechanism also makes it particularly well suited to tighter spaces where hinged doors can be impractical. Would also work well as a large media unit. The natural pine has matured to a lovely warm tone over the years, with the rich grain and honest signs of use giving the piece real authenticity. The contrasting black iron handles add a subtle industrial touch, whilst the turned bun feet provide a softer, more decorative finish. A versatile piece that would work beautifully ...
