Description

This stunning bed was crafted using antique barley twist posts and uprights which have a fab history behind them... The uprights and posts were hidden away for many years; just as the first world war was brewing, a factory in France sequestered away lots and lots of their frames, posts and uprights, hidden behind a false wall to keep them safe from the incoming risk of damage or theft. Around 30 years ago they were discovered, and we were lucky enough to get our hands on many of them. These unused, but antique twists and posts have finally been used for their intended purpose and our fabulous woodworker and lead finisher Billie, has expertly and beautifully hand crafted them into this stunning super king-sized barley twist bed. The barley twist posts are antique mahogany, and the barley twist uprights are antique Oak. The rest of the bed has been made using oak to replicate the French antique style of bed they likely would have been used for. Beautifully stained, shellacked / French polished, this bed has been finished just as beautifully as it has been made. It feels very special to be able to use these antique components for their intended purpose. Whole bed has been ...
