Description

Beautiful antique mahogany Canterbury side table dating from the Edwardian period. An elegant and beautifully proportioned piece, featuring a single drawer with decorative brass handles and brass roundels, together with a gracefully curved magazine rack beneath. The combination of clean lines, warm mahogany tones and refined craftsmanship gives this table a timeless appearance that complements both traditional and modern interiors. The generously sized drawer provides practical storage for everyday items, while the lower curved magazine rack is perfect for newspapers, magazines or books. Raised on elegant shaped supports with turned feet, the table has a light, sophisticated appearance while remaining practical for everyday use. This is a versatile piece that would work equally well as a side table, lamp table, occasional table or hallway piece, adding warmth and character to any home. Professionally cleaned and traditionally hand-waxed in our workshop, it is presented in beautiful showroom condition and is ready to be enjoyed immediately. A wonderful quality antique piece that is both decorative and practical. Condition Presented in excellent antique condition. T...
