Description

Highly decorative walnut kneehole desk of traditional design, featuring a beautifully figured walnut veneer throughout and a rich green tooled leather writing surface. The desk is fitted with an arrangement of drawers providing practical storage, while the elegant shaped apron and finely carved cabriole legs terminating in classic claw and ball feet add considerable character and craftsmanship. The attractive walnut grain and warm colour give the piece a refined and timeless appearance, making it equally suitable as a statement home office desk, library desk or occasional writing table. The original green leather writing surface remains in place, displaying a wonderful aged patina that complements the character of the piece and enhances its traditional appearance. A particularly handsome and impressive desk offering excellent practicality alongside strong decorative appeal. Condition Presented in very good condition overall. The desk has been sympathetically restored at some point in its life and displays a beautiful colour and finish throughout. The walnut veneers show particularly attractive grain patterns, while the original leather writing surface remains intact ...
