Description

Post-War Equestrian Oil Painting Working Horses 1948 Vintage, Signed Original Brief Description: This is a wonderful original signed Dutch Post-War Oil on Canvas Painting depicting three magnificent working horses standing within a tranquil woodland setting, with their riders labouring in the fields beyond. Painted in 1948, this charming composition beautifully captures the essence of rural Dutch life during a period when horses remained an indispensable part of everyday agricultural work. The artist has portrayed the animals with remarkable character and presence, while the softly painted woodland backdrop creates a peaceful and atmospheric setting. The painting is signed and dated in the lower right corner. Although the signature is difficult to decipher, it appears to read something akin to Jean De Jonghe. Executed in a warm, natural palette, the work possesses a wonderful sense of authenticity and nostalgia, making it an appealing addition to any collection of traditional European landscape or equestrian art. The painting is presented within its impressive original deeply moulded gilt scrolled frame, which complements the composition beautifully and enhances its...
