Description

An exceptional and imposing late 19th-century French Louis XV Revival bracket clock and bracket, of elegant serpentine form, veneered in rich red faux tortoiseshell and lavishly mounted with finely chased ormolu. The three-part case is crowned by a beautifully modelled gilt cherub holding a bird, while the pierced lower section displays scrolling Rococo ornament centred by a radiant mask. The elaborate gilt brass dial is fitted with applied white enamel cartouche Roman hour numerals and an outer Arabic minute ring, complemented by finely pierced steel hands. The eight-day movement, stamped Vincenti to the backplate, strikes the hours and half-hours on a gong. This impressive clock is complete with its original matching wall bracket. Height 90cm (35.43") Width 42cm (16.54") Depth 20cm (7.87") Andrew Lovatt Antiques has dated this piece, with reference #SA698583, to the 1870 period. Vincenti & Cie was a 19th-century French clockmaker, best known for producing high-quality clock movements and later complete clocks that are now highly collectible. Jean Vincenti (born in Corsica, 1786) founded the firm in 1823 in Montbéliard, France, building much of his own machinery for pr...
