Description

An impressive antique mahogany longcase clock dating from the early 19th century, featuring a richly painted moon-phase dial signed Parkinson Bros, Batley. The clock is housed within a tall and beautifully proportioned case veneered in finely figured mahogany. Its architectural hood is crowned by an elegant swan-neck pediment centred by a raised finial, while turned columns frame the dial. Further columns flank the trunk door, which displays particularly attractive flame mahogany figuring and restrained inlaid detailing. The painted dial is the defining feature of the clock. Bold Roman numerals surround a richly illustrated centre depicting a classical royal scene, complemented by a subsidiary seconds dial and twin winding apertures. The corners are decorated with colourful figures and animals, while the arched upper section incorporates a dramatic lunar display with coastal buildings, a sailing vessel and celestial imagery. The substantial lower case is enriched with book-matched mahogany veneers and crossbanded detail, giving the clock excellent visual presence without appearing excessively ornate.
