Description

A useful and appealing late Victorian metal cabin travel trunk, featuring an exceptionally fine and beautifully preserved faux-wood paint finish, giving the to the sheet-metal body the elegant appearance of a substantial wooden chest. The exterior retains all of its original hardware, including heavy-duty corner banding and decorative circular studs to the top, and a prominent central front lock with a lid drop-handle, all creating a fantastic industrial-meets-traditional aesthetic. The deep blue internal finish is in exceptional condition, rendering it perfectly retail-ready for immediate domestic use. With its generous proportions, sturdy build, and flat top, it is perfectly sized to serve as a high-end statement coffee table, end-of-bed blanket box, or a characterful living room storage solution. The exceptional faux-wood painted grain remains remarkably vibrant, clean, and well-preserved with an authentic, gently weathered patina. The metalwork is structurally sound with no major dents or structural rust. The hardware is complete and fastens securely; please note the original key has been lost to history.
