Description

Antique 19th Century packing or transporting case (one of a set of two). These types of packing cases are rare survivors indeed, as they were used to carry and protect, from the rigours of campaign life, each section of a military secretaire chest of drawers. We have sympathetically "upgraded" this case adding a set of four industrial wheels the base. Purchased together, they form a highly distinctive set of large bedside cabinets for a spacious bedroom. And by simply removing the wheels from at least one of the cases, these authentic pieces can be restacked into a single, striking tallboy unit. Probably made of pine and strengthened with iron strap work and with internal movable shelves the case has been over painted a few times and have had some restorations to the bottom parts of the case. Wear and tear commensurate with age and use with paint chips here and there.
