Description

Originating from Czech Republic this vase not has the wow factor with it's very distinctive turquoise colouring with jet black enamel accents, acid etching but is a great size standing just over 25 cm. Condition is very good, I couldn't find any damage or flaws to note only some very minor light surface scratches to the base. Typical of Palda glass, this vase has the iconic reverse etched stylized floral accents. It also has the most fabulous geometric patterning that Art Deco collectors will appreciate. The enamel is bright and crisp and free from any oxidation often found of enamel from the 30's. The vase itself is a shape we've not hand before it tapers in as you get to the base but the actual shape of the vase is very similar to handkerchief vases of the 1950's. It presents beautifully with any floral display and the vase itself being generously decorated on all sides and angles makes it the perfect piece for display just on it's own. The most common color of uranium glass is pale yellowish-green, which in the 1930s led to the nickname "Vaseline glass" based on a perceived resemblance to the appearance (which was a yellow-green colour) of Vaseline brand petroleum je...
