Description

A very good example of a late 17thc blue & white moulded lobed delftware pottery dish, probably from London, decorated with blue floral leaf border around the rim and central "oriental" pattern of a house in landscape, surrounded with "double-line" blue geometric border.....it has an attractive tin-glaze colour you find on these early English dishes of this period....the condition is very good with no restoration. English. C1680-90. London...possibly Norfolk House - a tin-glazed delftware pottery that operated in Church Street, Lambeth, London, from 1680 to 1779.
