Description

Vintage 20th century display cabinet in golden oak, a handsome and practical piece that combines classic styling with generous storage and display space. Very well made and of good quality, it has a timeless design that would suit both traditional and contemporary interiors. The upper section features a glazed display cabinet with three internal shelves, providing the perfect place to showcase china, glassware or treasured collections while keeping them protected. Below is a spacious blind-door cupboard enclosing a single shelf, offering useful concealed storage for larger household items. The cabinet is raised on a sturdy plinth base, giving it a balanced and substantial appearance. Crafted from beautifully matured golden oak, the timber displays an attractive natural grain and a rich golden colour throughout, creating a warm and inviting presence. The quality of the construction and its pleasing proportions make this a particularly desirable example, offering both durability and lasting appeal. Presented in good condition, this charming display cabinet is as functional as it is decorative. A versatile piece with excellent storage and display capacity, it would make a w...
