Description

Antique 19th century demi-lune side table in mahogany, a beautifully proportioned piece that reflects the refined elegance of late Georgian design. Well made and of good quality, this graceful table combines understated decoration with timeless craftsmanship, making it a versatile addition to both period and contemporary interiors. The distinctive demi-lune form is complemented by a finely reeded frieze, adding subtle texture and depth to the design. Delicate satinwood and ebony stringing provide an elegant contrast against the rich mahogany, showcasing the cabinet maker's attention to detail. Raised on slender tapered legs terminating in traditional spade feet, the table has a light and sophisticated appearance. Crafted from quality mahogany, the timber displays gorgeous natural grain and a deep, warm colour throughout. The beautifully figured top, together with the refined inlay work and elegant proportions, creates a piece that is both decorative and practical. Its classic styling and quality construction make it a particularly desirable example. Presented in good condition, this handsome demi-lune side table is full of period charm and enduring appeal.
