Description

A late 19th century burr walnut occasional table, with a radially segment-cut trefoil top set over three turned finely carved solid walnut supports, united by a matching veneered lower tier, and raised on swept carved legs with scroll feet. Dating from the golden era of English burr walnut cabinetmaking, its compact clover shape allows it to sit naturally in the angled space between a pair of armchairs or tuck neatly into a tight corner. Very good antique condition, showing a deep natural lustre and an attractive aged patina. Structurally sound and ready to place. English, circa 1860.
