Description

Antique 20th century Edwardian bureau in oak, a charming and practical piece that combines elegant period styling with excellent functionality. Very well made and of good quality, this attractive bureau has a distinctive design and would make a wonderful addition to a study, living room or hallway. The fall-front opens to reveal a neatly fitted interior, thoughtfully arranged with a selection of compartments and small drawers, providing an ideal writing space for organising stationery and correspondence. Beneath are two useful drawers, each retaining its original handles and fittings, offering additional storage while preserving the bureau's authentic character. Raised on elegantly turned legs united by a sturdy supporting stretcher, the bureau has a light and graceful appearance that reflects the understated elegance of Edwardian furniture. The oak displays gorgeous natural grain and a rich, warm colour throughout, enhancing its unique design and giving the piece plenty of warmth and character. Presented in good condition, this highly desirable Edwardian bureau is both decorative and practical. A fine example of early 20th century furniture with timeless appeal, it would...
