Description

Antique 19th century Victorian Sutherland table in burr walnut, a superb example of Victorian cabinet making, exceptionally well made and of the finest quality. Elegant in both design and construction, this beautifully proportioned table is renowned for its practicality while remaining a highly decorative piece in its own right. The table is raised on a finely turned base united by a shaped supporting stretcher, providing both strength and elegance. Graceful cabriole legs with beautifully carved knees terminate in original castors, allowing the table to be moved with ease while retaining its authentic period character. Its refined silhouette and quality construction make it a particularly desirable example. The burr walnut is truly outstanding, displaying magnificent figuring and an exceptionally rich, warm colour throughout. The striking veneers create beautiful natural patterns across the surface, highlighting the skill of the cabinet maker and the quality of the materials used. Every angle showcases the remarkable character of the timber, giving the piece an unmistakable sense of luxury. Presented in good condition, this Victorian Sutherland table is a timeless and v...
