Description

A superb 18th-century Rococo bombe chest of drawers, beautifully crafted with a yew-veneered front crossbanded in ash, the remainder in oak. The serpentine form flows gracefully, accentuating the chest's sculptural presence and fine proportions. Each of the three drawers is adorned with original brass handles and escutcheons, complemented by a working key, a rare survival that adds authenticity and charm. The chevron-patterned veneers catch the light with warmth and movement, showcasing the cabinetmaker's mastery of form and detail. A statement piece of Rococo artistry, combining playful curves with refined craftsmanship, perfect for interiors that celebrate elegance and individuality.
