Description

A fabulous Edwardian mahogany shop display cabinet, dating to the early 20th century, possessing a strong commercial character and a beautifully balanced design. Constructed in two sections, the cabinet features bowed glass sides and glass front, providing excellent visibility from multiple angles while creating a refined presence. The upper section has a stunning moulded cornice with distinctive dentil detailing above a series of full-height glazed doors, while the lower display section mirrors the same elegantly balanced bowed form. Inside, the cabinet retains its original cast iron adjustable shelf support system with beautifully cast brackets, allowing the glass shelves to be positioned at varying heights. Finished in rich mahogany, the cabinet displays as an excellent high-quality Edwardian retail furnishings. Designed for prestigious jewellers, outfitters or department stores, it offers generous display space while occupying a remarkably modest footprint. The cabinet comes complete with its 5 original glass shelves. Some of the shelves have chips and cracks consistent with age and use. Replacement toughened glass shelves are available at an additional cost...
