Description

A fine and rare pearlware pottery mug, very well modelled with a Bacchus mask with pointed ears and small horns. Decorated in prattware enamels of brown, ochre, green and dark blue and the rim and the edge of the wide strap handle edged in blue also. Unmarked, c.1800. It measures 10.2cm (4") high, 14.5cm (5 3/4") from to back and 8.3cm (3 1/4") wide. Condition is very excellent; there is one small chip to the back just below the rim to the side of the handle. No other damage, repair or restoration. A little discolouration inside and under the base. Very minor handling wear and the enamels are lovely and bright.
